Betel leaf cultivators earn handsome profits

LOCAL betel leaf cultivators from Thaton Township, Mon State, have earned handsome profits because of the high price for betel leaves this year.

"Betel leaves do not grow well in unstable weather conditions. So, we have to grow betel leaves in three farms to be able to produce them for the entire year. The cultivation of betel leaves is risky business, because every year does not give the same results. Last year, the price of betel leaves declined and several cultivators went abroad to work and pay off the debt they had incurred from cultivating betel leaves," said U Than Tun, a local betel leaf cultivator from Zayet Kyung Village.

The price of betel leaves is not stable in the early months, with the supply also declining, he added.

The lower region market depends on the Monywa betel leaf market. "If betel leaves from Monywa enter the market, our betel leaves will not get a good price," said Daw Hla Tin, a betel leaf merchant from Naung Bo Village.

There are some 500 betel leaf cultivators in Thaton Township. Betel leaves from Thaton Township are selling at Myawady, Kawkareik, Mawlamyine, DaikU, Nyaunglebin and Loilkaw.

The price of betel leaves is normally some Ks2,000 per viss. This year, the price jumped to Ks8,000 per viss due to market conditions. The leaves are plucked once a week.

The cultivation of betel leaves costs more than Ks3.5 million, including the cost of seeds, fertilisers and labourers, according to local cultivators from Thaton Township.—Thet Oo (Thaton) ■

Rice exports increase by $480 million this FY

Workers carry rice bags at a jetty in Yangon. PHOTO: PHOE KHWAR

RICE exports, as of the first week of January in the current fiscal year (FY), reached more than 2.6 million metric tonnes, bringing in US$480 million more this year compared with the same period last year, according to the commerce ministry.

This year's export volume is up by 1.6 million metric tonnes against last year, registering a record 50-year high.

Previously, some 72 per cent of rice and broken rice exports went to foreign trade partners via border checkpoints.

Rice trade through the sea route has now picked up. This FY, 60 per cent of the rice exports were shipped via sea, whereas 40 per cent of the rice trade was carried out through the border gates.

Last year, only 29 countries bought rice from Myanmar, while this year, Myanmar's rice has been shipped to some 48 countries through the sea route.

The Myanmar Rice Federation is targeting bolstering the volume of rice exports by 2020. —Mon Mon ■

Mung bean, red gram prices fall in domestic market

THE sliding prices of mung beans and pigeon peas (red gram) in the domestic market have crushed farmers' hopes of obtaining high prices for their pulses, according to a report in Myanmar Alinn yesterday.

The prices of pulses tend to rise in December.

Currently, India is self-sufficient in pulses, with fresh supplies continually entering its market. Therefore, the price of mung beans is likely to remain stable, Agriwatch has stated.

The price of mung beans dropped by Ks50,000 per tonne within a week at the Yangon Commodity Depot, while the price of pigeon peas fell by Ks30,000 per tonne at the Yangon market compared to last week's price. The price of green grams is also on the lower side.

Following the restriction on pea imports into India, prices of domestic pulses plummeted, as Myanmar's market is heavily reliant on the Indian market. Some 1.5 million tonnes of pulses are exported to India every year. —Wunt Yee Mon (AMIA)■ standards of the ethnic national brothers and sisters in regions such as the Naga Self-administered Zone is important and plays a major role.

The government is conducting national reconciliation, peace and stability processes throughout the whole union by holding the Union Peace Conference – 21st Century Panglong," stated the vice president.

"Further, ethnic nationals and people need to strive together and perform their duties, without differentiating between hills, plains, states and regions, for the establishment of a democratic federal union.

2nd Pyidaungsu Hluttaw begins regular session

Hluttaw representatives are advised to coordinate and work together in order to avoid unnecessary disagreement by basing on the experience of the works conducted during the two-year period of the second Hluttaw term.

Moreover, all are urged to work together and manage by stages for the success of the works benefiting the people, complete the work in time, avoid audit objection and return the excess fund for works that could not be done

Hluttaw representatives will face more works during this Hluttaw session and all need to value and systematically use the time with good effort, work and will.

As people's representative using the power granted by the people for the country, it is important to follow related laws, rules, regulations and procedures.

Next, the matter of loan from Austria's Unicredit Bank sent by the President was explained by Deputy Minister for Construction U Kyaw Lin. The Deputy Minister said the Euro 5.0 million soft loan from Austria's Unicredit Bank when obtained will be used for Kinchaung Bridge construction project on the Zinchaung-Kinmyauk-Laytaung road in Rakhine State, Kyaukphyu District, Yanbye Township.

The 1,256 ft. long Kinchaung Bridge is close to the sea and by constructing it under the European technology, the quality will be better while it can better withstand the weather and natural surrounding (seawater effect). Myanmar engineer will also be able to study the modern bridge building technology. Once the bridge is completed, it will shorten the travel time between Kyaukpyu and Yanbye towns. Due to better road communication, there'll be additional benefits of increasing the local and foreign investments that will develop the social-economic situation of the people in the region. As the construction of Kinchaung Bridge will benefit the country's social, economy, education, health, transport and all other sectors, Pyidaungsu Hluttaw is requested to permit the no-interest Euro 5.0 million soft loan from Austria government.

Union Minister for Planning and Finance U Kyaw Win explained further about the loan and said the grace period is 8 years and repayment period is 17 years, making a total loan period of 25 years. It is an interest-free loan with a management fee of 0.65 per cent of the loan amounting to Euro 32,500, advance insurance premium Euro 37,125, bank charges of Euro 1,440 adding up to a total one-time payment of Euro 71,065. Remaining insurance fee of 0.9 per cent of the loan are to be paid yearly and if the loan is forfeited, a yearly forfeiture fee of 0.65 per cent of the loan need to be paid for the year it is forfeited. Under the assistance program of the Austria government, 15 per cent of the loan (Euro 0.75 million) is not required to be repaid and only the remaining 85 per cent (Euro 4.25 million) need to be paid back.

Whether an international loan is a concessional loan or non-concessional loan is determined by the grant element. According to World Bank, if the grant element is above 35 per cent, it is a concessional loan and if it is below 35 per cent, it is a non-concessional loan. The loan from Austria to buy the steel frames for Kinchaung Bridge has a grant element of 43.93 per cent and thus it is a concessional loan explained the Union Minister U Kyaw Win.

Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Speaker then announced for Hluttaw representatives who want to discuss the matter to enroll their names.

The Union Minister stated that the National Planning Bill for the six month period of 2018 April to September was drawn up in accordance with the economic policy of the union, policies of the union ministries, state/region governments and United Nations sustainable development goals.

Proposals for projects were based on implementation of past year projects, priority sector, region and subjects, immediate requirements and availability of fund. Feasibility, benefit to the people and the economy, support toward regional development and environmental impact were also assessed.

The bill was drawn up in coordination for effectiveness and to benefit sector wise and region wise during the transition six month period.

The aims of planning for the six-month period will focus on the projects which are urgently needed to be implemented for the people and for the projects which are considered essential for the National Planning of the 2018-2019 Fiscal Year.

In the annex of 2018 April to September six month national planning bill, the expectation of the union, aim and processes to implement each of the 12 policies, union ministries' policy, aim, implementation process and priority works according to each union ministry were included.

In the 2018 April to September six month national planning bill, a total investment of more than Ks 2,988 billion investment is earmarked in the state-owned sector including states/regions, said U Kyaw Win.

2nd Pyidaungsu Hluttaw 7th regular session 2nd day meeting will be held today. ■

Beneficial aid provided by good friends

At the joint press conference between the State Counsellor and the Foreign Minister of Japan held at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Nay Pyi Taw on 12th January 2018, the Japanese Foreign Minister clarified Japan's assistance programs aimed at raising the living standards of the Myanmar people.

The program for providing development assistance to Myanmar is, in fact, the consequence of the official State Visit of President U Htin Kyaw in December in 2017, in which the Japanese Prime Minister gave his solemn pledge that Japan would help Myanmar in building Myanmar into a democratic nation.

It is learnt that the Japanese Government had made a policy decision to provide Myanmar with Japanese Yen 800 billion worth of development assistance within a period of 5 years under the Japan-Myanmar cooperation program which had been agreed by both countries since two years ago. The program is aimed at making democracy deep-rooted in Myanmar, developing Myanmar's economy and bringing about national reconciliation in the country.

This is only a part of the transportation sector programs of the friendly development assistance provided by Japan. Many other programs are not discussed here.

Concerning economic development out of the development assistance program, the Japanese Government has chosen to help in three sectors—Yangon Urbanization Project, National transportation and Electricity generation. The objectives of Japan's assistance program for Myanmar based upon the said three sectors must be said to be noble deeds. This program aims to raise the living standard of the Myanmar people before 2020.

Under the program, new railway coaches with running capacity of 100 kilometer per hour will run between Yangon-Taungoo prior to September 2020, it was learnt. It was also decided that extension of running up to Mandalay would be made in 2023. When the program is completed, travelling hours can be reduced respectively, taking only 3 ½ hours for a 7 hour journey between Yangon-Taungoo and only 8 hours between Yangon-Mandalay.

With effective transportation between Yangon-Mandalay just in a short period of time, travelling and trade flows between the two economic hubs of the nation will be easy and convenient more than ever. This will definitely support the socio-economic development of the people with the aid of improved rail transportation. Under the renovation program of the Yangon Circular Railway, 18 new coaches will be added before September 2020. By 2022 daily routes of the circular railways will be raised up to 180 from 120 present routes. Thus, it is expected to reduce traffic jam problems currently being faced by the Yangon citizens. And, social lives of people in the urban area will be raised up as the development of the immediate vicinity of the circular railway will be implemented.

This is only a part of the transportation sector programs of the friendly development assistance provided by Japan. Many other programs are not discussed here. With due respect for the meritorious deeds of the donor country, we should all work hard in the different sectors we are assigned in, with discipline and a deep understanding of the historic significance of all these programs in our transition to a developed and prosperous democratic republic.

Every Individual Can Enjoy Human Rights, And The Disabled Can Do Likewise

By Dr Khine Khine Win

ALMOST everywhere across the world there are the disabled people, who were regarded to have been subjected to different evil fates—something or other. They are also called the world's largest minority. According to the UN records, the disabled persons amounted to over one billion. It was said that they are being segregated in different ways, suffering from myriads of difficulties, natural disasters and poverty. Among them, more than 80 per cent of the disabled populace is living in the developing countries, it was said. Studies pointed out that the disabled ones occupied over 4.6 percent of the entire national populace of Myanmar.

In the human-right point of view, the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities—CRPD was promulgated under the order A/RES/61/106 by the UN General Assembly on 13th December 2006.

In the Convention, the points for the global countries to implement the tasks of making the disabled persons enjoy their inborn rights, dignities and people's respects towards them, removing people's discrimination and acquiring equal rights like the abled bodies were included.

Myanmar signed the Convention as a member country on 7th December 2011. Such a signing is meant for the solemn pledge to the international communities that Myanmar will protect inborn rights of the disabled persons living in the country and implement the prescriptions as included in the Convention, so as to protect these rights.

After signing the Convention, supplementary efforts were successfully implemented. On 5th June 2015 Law on the Rights of the Disabled Persons was promulgated under the notification no 30 of the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw.

Secondly, Myanmar Federation of Persons with Disabilities managed to be formed. As the third initiative, the National Committee on Rights of Persons with Disabilities led by the Vice-President.

The National Committee established has 9 objectives and 25 obligations to be implemented. Such an establishment of the National Committee can be said to be an encouragement for the persons with disabilities as well as a ray of hope for them to enjoy rights without any discriminations.

Little was known about the persons with disabilities as for the most of the people across the world, as to how many disabled persons are living in the quarters, in their societies and in the country they live and as to what kinds of difficulties they are suffering. Some may have known these facts, but they sure lack knowledge how to help them. Accordingly, the United Nations Organization designated 3rd December as the International Day of Persons with Disabilities. On this day, ceremonies and talk shows marking the international day of persons with disabilities are annually held in many parts of the country under the sponsorship of the governmental organizations and non-governmental organizations with a view for the entire global populace to be well convinced of rights of the disabled persons. By taking active participation of the disabled ones themselves in these events people will come to recognize and pay respect to the persons with disabilities and their dignities.

In several decades ago, people used to regard the disabled ones to be victims of different evil fates, feeling great pity towards them whereas some generally neglected them without having pity and understanding towards them. What the worst is that there were discriminations even in some families. However, in today's world the knowledge on democracy is more rapidly around the world, thus tidy filtration of the doctrines on democratic rights in the minds of the people. For this, we must change or get rid of old habits and doctrines conceived in us for many years.

Every individual can enjoy human rights and they have their respective dignities, as can the persons with disabilities because the latter ones as well belong to human societies.

Every individual including the disabled ones has their inborn dignities. For this, they have rights for an access to academic learning, rights to cast votes, rights to be elected, freedom of expression, freedom of collection of news and information and etc., like the abled bodies.

Being citizens living in the country, they have all the citizen rights. Kinds of the rights they get must be the human rights they deserve as human beings, absolutely not the kind given out of pity. To fulfill these needs it is incumbent upon the State in which they are residing.

As for the rules and laws promulgated, they need to be effective ones.

Each and every one of us is responsible for them not to be segregated on the wrong pretext of disabilities.

In case discriminations were allowed, they might be deprived of their inborn rights, reputations and potential developments.

Forbidding their progress will be a hindrance for them as well as a great burden for their families.

Persons with disabilities as well have their respective own abilities, likely to become beneficial ones for the families and for the nation.

As for the Government of the State, it is required to make concerted effort for eradication of hindrances and kinds of discrimination.

Last but not least, we would like to urge our people to cooperate in eradicating the practices of discrimination in recognition of reputation of the disabled persons after keeping in our minds that persons with disabilities have similar rights and reputations like all of us, as there are still behaviors of segregation in many spheres across the nation.

Chicken meat, eggs distributed from Shan Yoma livestock breeding zone

SOME 450,000 chicken eggs are distributed daily to other states from Shan Yoma livestock breeding zone in Nyaung Shwe Township, Shan State. The Shan Yoma livestock breeding zone has bred some 800,000 chickens, according to the consumer affairs department.

“We have bred the egg-laying chickens, as well as broiler chickens, in our livestock breeding zone. Therefore, we can fulfil the consumption needs of the local people and distribute to other regions as well. To develop a breeding sector, the authorities should make arrangements to provide loans to small and medium enterprises, as well as assistance for the sustainable development of livestock breeding zones,” said U Mya Than, director of the Shan State consumer affairs department.

The livestock breeding zone was constructed with 208 poultry farms on a 429.67-acre plot. The poultry farms in the southern part of Shan State produce

“The entrepreneurs are also planning to set up another livestock breeding zone in Taunggyi. Currently, they are looking for a plot to set up the zone. Then, they will submit a proposal to the state government. We need their support too,” said U Sai Wanna Tun, a Taunggyi broiler chicken breeding entrepreneur.

The livestock breeding zone has created jobs for more than 180 workers. The entrepreneurs are also planning to form a committee to conduct educational talks on the poultry farms.— Myat Thu (AMIA) ■

Berlin and Paris step up push for euro zone reform deal

BERLIN/PARIS— Emboldened by a preliminary coalition deal between Chancellor Angela Merkel and the Social Democrats (SPD), Germany and France will try to inject new momentum into their stalled EU reform efforts this week when their finance ministers meet in Paris.

Peter Altmaier, one of Merkel's closest party allies, will pay a visit to his French counterpart Bruno Le Maire on Thursday, a day after leading French and German economists unveil new recommendations for a reform of the euro zone.

The meeting is a sign that Berlin is prepared to negotiate with Paris in parallel to Merkel's coalition talks with the SPD, which could begin later this month if members of the centre-left party give a green light at a party congress next Sunday.

"We have an acting government which can act and must continue to work," Achim Post, deputy leader for the SPD in parliament, told Reuters. He said the coalition blueprint clinched on Friday would pave the way for a "paradigm shift" on Europe away from austerity and towards more investment and jobs. The 28-page document was also welcomed by French President Emmanuel Macron, whose plans for an ambitious reform of the EU, including an overhaul of euro zone governance, were dealt a blow by an inconclusive German election in September and the political limbo that followed.

The draft, which could form the basis for Merkel's third "grand coalition" government since taking power in 2005, raises the prospect of an "investment budget" for the single currency bloc, a nod to Macron's call for a budget to help the euro zone cope with external economic shocks. It also calls for the ESM bailout mechanism to be turned into a full-blown European Monetary Fund under parliamentary control and anchored in EU law. In a sign of lingering divisions between Berlin and Paris, Macron on Friday questioned the logic of such a fund and stressed the need to complete the EU's "banking union", a vital project designed to sever the link between troubled banks and sovereign lenders. Berlin has been reluctant to move to the final stage by establishing a common deposit insurance scheme. As Merkel was celebrating her deal with the SPD on Friday, Paris was rolling out the red carpet for Mario Centeno, the new president of the Eurogroup forum of euro zone finance ministers, in a signal to other countries that Macron means business. "It's not insignificant and certainly not innocent in terms of the message," a French finance ministry source said of the visit by Centeno, who met with Macron, Le Maire and Prime Minister Edouard Philippe.—Reuters

Scores injured as Indonesia stock exchange building lobby floor collapses

JAKARTA — A mezzanine floor overlooking the main lobby of the Indonesian Stock Exchange building collapsed on Monday, injuring scores of people, many of them students, under slabs of concrete and other debris, officials and witnesses said.

The high-rise building, constructed in the late 1990s, is part of a two-tower complex also housing offices of the World Bank and the International Finance Corporation. It was the target of a car bombing by Islamist militants in September 2000.

Police ruled out a bomb as a cause of Monday's collapse. They said at least 77 people had been injured. No deaths had been reported, said Triana Tambunan, business development manager at MRCC Siloam hospital, one of the hospitals near the stock exchange. "Up to now we've registered 30 people," Tambunan told reporters.

"The bone fractures may be serious. We need to carry out further evaluations," she said, adding there were at least three suspected fractures.

Safety standards are often loosely enforced in Indonesia. Last year, a fire that ripped through a fireworks factory on the outskirts of Jakarta killed around 50 people in one of the country's worst industrial accidents. A police investigation found multiple safety violations.

Police cordoned off the complex as people fled the building, and the injured, including visiting university students, were taken away by stretcher.

Stock exchange president director Tito Sulistio said their treatment would be paid for by the exchange. Images aired on television and circulated on social media showed a concrete and metal structure that had collapsed around a Starbucks cafe near the entrance to the lobby of the building with blue-tinted windows. "The second floor of the building has collapsed," said Vindy, a personal assistant to Sulistio, who was in the building at the time. "Slabs of concrete started to fall, there was lots of dust. Water pipes had burst," said Megha Kapoor, who works in the building and was in the lobby at the time. "I heard a loud cracking sound. I saw a lady unconscious stuck under a slab of concrete," she said, adding that the collapsed level was just above the reception desk.

Finance Minister Sri Mulyani Indrawati said she hoped the collapse would not affect investor confidence in the tropical Southeast Asian archipelago. The exchange resumed business in the afternoon as per schedule.—Reuters

Malaysia-Singapore ties tested by high-speed rail contract

KUALA LUMPUR/SINGAPORE — The leaders of Malaysia and Singapore are expected to discuss plans for a high-speed rail project linking their countries during summit talks on Tuesday, as a deadline to award the multi-billion dollar project nears.

The high-speed rail valued by analysts at about $17 billion is the biggest project undertaken by the Southeast Asian neighbours in recent years, and will test a relationship that has been frosty since the end of the colonial era in the 1960s.

It also could expose broader tensions over China's growing influence in the region, as the two leaders must choose between competing bids from Chinese and Japanese rivals, as well as European and South Korean firms.

A joint tender for the company that would build, operate and finance the trains and the rail assets closes on 29 June, and a decision is expected by the end of the year. "It (the preferred bidder) could be a source of difference," said Associate Professor Ja Ian Chong of the Department of Political Science at National University of Singapore.

"But the issue is whether this difference is something where a compromise can be found and I think that's very hard to tell at this point."

Given his close ties to Beijing, rejecting a Chinese bid would be tough for Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak, who will hold talks with his Singaporean counterpart, Lee Hsien Loong, in Singapore on Tuesday. Beijing has pumped billions into Malaysia over the last two years, as Najib looked to tackle massive government debt and appease voters ahead of national elections this year.

Najib's government handed a $13 billion rail project to China last year that links peninsular Malaysia's east and west.

Singapore, on the other hand, has had difficulties recently in its relationship with China over Taiwan and the disputed South China Sea islands.

China Railway Corporation would lead a consortium of Chinese companies bidding for the massive project, one diplomatic source in Kuala Lumpur told Reuters. For Japan, JR East would head a consortium that includes Sumitomo Corporation, Hitachi Ltd, Mitsubishi Heavy Industries and NEC Corp, the source said.

South Korea's consortium would include Hyundai Rotem Co and Hyundai Engineering and Construction, another source familiar with the bidding said. China's key competitive advantage is its lower construction cost, said Corrine Png, the CEO of transport research firm Crucial Perspective.

Japan, on the other hand, has a long record of building and operating high-speed rail and wants to counter Chinese influence in Southeast Asia, which has been backed by mega-projects under Beijing's Belt and Road Initiative.

About 90 per cent of the rail network is in Malaysia, and Najib's government has agreed to pay for its share of the line itself. Yet to be decided, however, are other costs like building and maintaining the rolling stock.—Reuters

“Jumanji: Welcome to the Jungle” remains atop North American box office

LOS ANGELES — Sony’s action adventure comedy film “Jumanji: Welcome to the Jungle” remained atop North American box office, dominating the Martin Luther King holiday weekend with an estimated 27.03 million US dollars through Sunday.

It is “a solid Martin Luther King Weekend that should generate around 152 million dollars for the 3-day and a projected 4-day total of 187 to 190 million dollars,” wrote movie analyst Paul Dergarabedian at comScore in an email to Xinhua.

“Jumanji: Welcome to the Jungle” has brought in a massive 283.17 million dollars in total in North American theatres to date since opening on 20 December, according to the studio figures collected by comScore.

Directed by Jake Kasdan and stars Dwayne Johnson, Jack Black, Kevin Hart and Karen Gillan, the sequel to 1995’s “Jumanji” follows four teenagers who are transported into the video game world of Jumanji and must work together to beat the game in order to return to the real world.

20th Century Fox’s “The Post” came in second with an estimated 18.6 million dollars in its fourth weekend but the first wide expansion weekend. The film premiered at the Newseum in Washington, DC on 14 December, 2017, and began a limited release on 22 December, before a wide release on 12 January.

Steven Spielberg directs Meryl Streep and Tom Hanks in “The Post,” a political thriller film about the unlikely partnership between The Washington Post’s Katharine Graham, the first female publisher of a major American newspaper, and editor Ben Bradlee, as they race to catch up with The New York Times to expose a massive cover-up of government secrets that spanned three decades and four US presidents. daily train commute. Universal’s supernatural horror film “Insidious: The Last Key” landed in fourth place with an estimated 12.13 million dollars in its second weekend. 20th Century Fox’s musical biopic “The Greatest Showman” finished fifth with an estimated 11.8 million dollars in its fourth weekend. —Xinhua ■

Male models say top fashion photographers harassed them — New York Times

NEW YORK — Male models and assistants who worked with high-powered fashion photographers Bruce Weber and Mario Testino say they were subjected by them to molestation, sexual advances and unnecessary nudity, The New York Times reported on Saturday.

In patterns that went on for years, the young men, including some who were given anonymity, said the photographers put them in uncomfortable sexual situations that they felt pressured to accept out of fear of upending their careers, The Times said.

Lawyers for both photographers denied the allegations and said that the pair was surprised and dismayed by them. Neither Weber, Testino nor their accusers could immediately be reached for further comment.

“We never had sex or anything, but a lot of things happened. A lot of touching. A lot of molestation,” the Times quoted model Robyn Sinclair as saying of Weber. Sinclair was among 15 current and former male models whom the newspaper said described harassment by Weber, 71, whose fashion clients have included Calvin Klein and Abercrombie & Fitch.

Through his lawyers, Weber denied the accusations in a statement to The Times, saying: “I’m completely shocked and saddened by the outrageous claims being made against me, which I absolutely deny.”

Testino’s law firm, Lavelly & Singer, challenged the credibility of his accusers and said it had spoken to former employees of Testino who said they were shocked by the allegations and could not confirm any of them, The Times said. Allegations against Testino, 63, who has worked for fashion brands including Michael Kors, Burberry and Dolce & Gabbana, were made by 13 male assistants and models in accounts going back to the mid-1990s, the newspaper said.

Multiple accusations of sexual misconduct against male actors, filmmakers and agents have roiled Hollywood since October 2017. The scandal has also engulfed men in US politics, business and the workplace, inspiring a widespread #MeToo social movement by victims of sexual harassment or abuse.

Following The Times’ report, Conde Nast artistic director Anna Wintour said the magazine company had suspended any future work with the two photographers, whom she described as personal friends. “I believe strongly in the value of remorse and forgiveness, but I take the allegations very seriously, and we at Conde Nast have decided to put our working relationship with both photographers on hold for the foreseeable future,” Wintour, who is also editor in chief of Vogue magazine, said in a statement. — Reuters ■

Swedish man preserving art of Japanese sword-crafting

KUMAMOTO, (Japan) — A Swedish man has become an unlikely protector of ancient Japanese swords by learning the art of sword-crafting, overcoming numerous setbacks including the major earthquakes that rocked Kumamoto in 2016.

Hans Koga, 45, also known as Hansuke Koga, lives in Nagomi, Kumamoto Prefecture, and is one of the rare “koshirae” craftsmen specializing in meticulously repairing the exterior, including the handle and sheath, of Japanese swords.

The southwestern Japan prefecture is where Higo koshirae originated, a sword style established by Hosokawa Tadaoki (1563-1646), father of the first lord of Kumamoto.

By replacing old and damaged sword handle wrapping and other parts to make the sword last another hundred years with its original look, Koga told Kyodo News he is playing a “part in contributing to cultural history.”

“I am only interested in this culture. This is my work.”

As a child in Stockholm, Koga developed an interest in Japanese swords after he discovered Iaido, a Japanese martial art that involves drawing a sword, and began collecting them.

Koga came to Japan in 2012 after injuring his hand and leaving a career as a ship builder. He received training for craftwork associated with Japanese swords at a Tokyo studio, during which he became interested in Higo koshirae, a style that attracted him by its simplicity and functionality.

In the fall of 2015, Koga moved to Kumamoto, where after discovering there was no active Higo koshirae craftsmen, he asked a retired craftsman to train him.

Then a magnitude-6.5 earthquake hit the region on 14 April, 2016, and a M7.3 temblor two days later, subsequently killing over 200 people and leaving thousands more injured. Koga’s home, which he used as a studio, also collapsed in the disaster. —Kyodo News ■

Regional cooperation brings opportunities for Southeast Asian language learners

KUNMING — When Zhang Weiguo learned that he was admitted as a Burmese major at Yunnan Minzu University in 2009, he was deeply worried that he might not find a job after graduation.

Zhang, from southwest China’s Yunnan Province, was offered a national scholarship to study in Myanmar for roughly a year in 2012. The experience changed him. “At first I didn’t feel much about my major and thought it was just a minority language used by a small population. During my year in Myanmar, I made quite a lot of friends, and got to know the country and its people better,” Zhang said.

Even more surprising to him were the multiple job offers he received from a government department, a state-owned bank and a university when he graduated in 2013. After some thought, he chose to become one of the first Burmese teachers at Guangdong University of Foreign Studies.

Almost all of Zhang’s 28 classmates were able to find jobs related to their major. Zhang said thanks to promotion of the Lancang-Mekong Cooperation (LMC), demand for Southeast Asian languages talent has surged in recent years. According to Chinese Premier Li Keqiang at the Second LMC Leaders’ Meeting held in Cambodia this week, China is now the largest trading partner of Cambodia, Myanmar, Thailand and Viet Nam, and the second-largest trading partner of Laos.

“Building mutual trust and understanding is the key to LMC, which requires more people who know not only the other country’s language, but their national conditions, culture and way of thinking as well,” said Zhao Shulan, a research fellow with the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies at the Yunnan Academy of Social Sciences.

Zhao said systematic language training is indispensable and the most efficient way to achieve the goal. In 2017, the trade volume between China and the five Mekong countries reached 220 billion US dollars, up 16 per cent from 2016. China’s total investment in the five countries has exceeded 42 billion US dollars, with a growth rate of more than 20 per cent in 2017. More people are running businesses and building careers in other countries in the region.

Yunnan, which borders Myanmar, Laos and Viet Nam, has established an intercollegiate committee to promote the teaching and learning of Southeast Asian languages in the province. A dozen language majors have since been set up, covering as many as 15 different languages used in Southeast Asia. “Studying the Thai language has brought me opportunities to explore the country’s politics, economics and culture, and a promising career as well,” said Chen Xiaoyun, a faculty member in the Thai studies program at Yunnan Academy of Social Sciences.

To further cultural and educational exchanges between China and Southeast Asia, Premier Li said China will offer short-term training and in-service education for 2,000 people in Lancang-Mekong countries and 100 four-year scholarships for undergraduates in 2018. Zhang has applied for a master’s degree in Southeast Asian studies at the university where he teaches Burmese, the same program his students are enrolled in. “I will get my master’s degree this year together with my students, and I would like to continue doctoral studies in the area,” Zhang said. —Xinhua ■

Barcelona midfielder Turan joins Turkish leaders on loan

ANKARA — Turkish league leaders Istanbul Basaksehir have signed midfielder Arda Turan on a two-and-a-half season loan deal from Barcelona, the club announced in a news conference on Monday.

The Turkey international would be paid 2 million euros ($2.45 million) plus a bonus for this season and 4 million euros next season, the club chairman Goksel Gumusdag announced.

"I am excited to be back to doing what I love most: playing football. I missed football so much," Turan said after not making a single appearance for Barcelona this season.

One point clear of city rivals Galatasaray, who Turan played for from 2005-11, after 17 games, the midfielder's arrival is expected to help push the club to a maiden Super Lig title.

Turan will find himself in a dressing room of an ambitious club with a growing pedigree as former Manchester City pair Emmanuel Adebayor and Gael Clichy are among the most high-profile members of the current squad.

"I think we are one of the most important candidates for the championship this season.

We will play each and every game like we are playing the most important final of our lives," he said.

The 30-year-old joined Barcelona from Atletico Madrid for 34 million euros plus add-ons in July 2015, winning six trophies but only making 55 appearances and scoring 15 goals at the Camp Nou.

Turan has two-and-a-half years left on his Barca contract but will see it out in Istanbul. However, Barcelona can still sell the player during that period if they accept an offer for him.

Spanish newspaper Sport last week estimated it cost Barca one million euros for each appearance made by Turan, taking into account an annual salary reported to be 8 million euros a year.

Turkey's fourth-most capped player with 100 appearances, Turan will also be hoping to return to his best form for the national side after reversing a decision to retire from international football in August. ## Nishioka advances to 2nd round at Australian Open MELBOURNE — Japan's Yoshihito Nishioka moved into the second round of the Australian Open after beating world No 29 German Philipp Kohlschreiber in five sets in the men's singles on Monday.

Nishioka, who underwent surgery last March to repair a torn knee ligament, won 6-3, 2-6, 6-0, 1-6, 6-2 in 2 hours, 39 minutes, despite Kohlschreiber scoring more aces and winners

"Before I got injured I had played good tennis and beaten top opponents, and that experience was big for me," said Nishioka, currently ranked 168th in the world. "Because the wind was strong, I didn't want to take risks, so I chose tactics that would reduce mistakes."

The 22-year-old reached the second round of the tournament for the second straight year, and will challenge Italian Andreas Seppi on Wednesday.

On another court, 40th-ranked Yuichi Sugita of Japan also advanced over eighth seed Jack Sock of the United States, winning 6-1, 7-6(4), 5-7 6-3 in four sets.—Kyodo News ■

Giggs set to be named Wales manager — report

LONDON — Former Manchester United winger Ryan Giggs is poised to be named as Wales manager, the BBC reported on Sunday.

The Football Association of Wales is holding a news conference on Monday at which the 44-year-old Giggs is expected to be unveiled as the successor to Chris Coleman who quit the job in November to take charge of Sunderland.

Giggs won 64 caps between 1991 and 2007 but was unpopular with some Wales fans for missing many internationals, especially friendlies.

He ended his glittering 23-year playing career in 2014 and managed Manchester United in a caretaker role for four games at the end of the 2013-14 season after David Moyes was sacked.

Giggs was Louis van Gaal's assistant at Old Trafford for the following two seasons before leaving United in 2016 after Jose Mourinho was appointed as manager.
