Pyithu Hluttaw

Gov't urged to speed up implementation of mechanized farming system

THE seventh session of the second Pyithu Hluttaw held its 15th-day meeting yesterday morning, where questions on the farm sector were asked and answered, the Myanmar Historical Commission bill tabled, and a discussion was held on a motion urging the government to establish one-acre plots for the rapid implementation and success of a mechanised farming system.

First, six Hluttaw representatives, U Than Soe of Thazi constituency, Daw Mi Kun Chan of Paung constituency, U Sai Kyaw Moe of Mongpan constituency, Daw Cho Cho of Ottwin constituency, Dr. Daw Khin Nyo of Dedaye constituency and U Kyaw Soe of Bamauk constituency raised questions, which were answered by Deputy Minister for Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation U Hla Kyaw.

Next, Union Minister for Religious Affairs and Culture Thura U Aung Ko tabled a motion on the Myanmar Historical Commission bill and the Pyithu Hluttaw bill committee read and explained its report on the bill.

The Hluttaw speaker then requested the Hluttaw representatives who wanted to table an amendment to the bill to register their names.

A motion urging the government to accelerate the establishment of one-acre plots for the rapid implementation and success of a mechanised farming system was debated by several MPs.

In his discussion on the motion, U Hla Kyaw said the government had developed more than 62,300 acres of systematic farmlands from the fiscal years 2011-2012 to 2017-2018. The work for developing systematic farmlands includes water egress/ingress channels and creating a level one-acre rectangular field, which is costly. Depending on the farmland situation, these works cost from Ks1.2 to Ks2 million per acre. As farmers are unable to incur the expenses, the government is establishing such farmlands free of cost. Because of the high acreage of farmland areas, it will be difficult to incur these costs in the long run. Based on the experience of implementing systematic farmlands so far, the priority is to get the consensus of farmers who own small plots to develop an area. Even if there is a consensus, there are some who are against this, and they need to be persuaded, replied the Deputy Minister.

Hluttaw then agreed to put the motion on record and keep the matter under observation. —Kyaw Thu Htet ■

Traditional pot enterprise creates job opportunities for local women

MAKING traditional earthen pots was practiced by ancestors in Pazun Myaung village in Nyaunglebin Township. So this traditional craft has been preserved and now it can offer local women job opportunities.

Best sellers can be made from clay or they are shaped with a narrow-neck and the bottom is jug-shaped. Other best sellers include big pots, cooking pots and water pots. Among these, clay water pots are the most popular. The price for a pot ranges from 1000 Ks to 1500 Ks and the cost of a pot which is equipped with tap is about 4500 Ks according to Daw Chaw Chaw, one of the pot makers in Pazun Myaung Village.

"Pots are made of clay and there are four colors of clay; black, brown, sepia and yellow. The yellow color pot is the most attractive to make. First, the clay is soaked for one or two nights. Then, the soaked clay is mixed with sand that is not too rough or smooth and this mixture has to be covered with cloth. It also needs to be stamped with the pot maker's feet so the mixture is sticky the next day. Afterwards, based on the size of the pot, a round ball is made and this clay ball is put on the potter's wheel and it can be shaped any way the potter wants. Then before the pots are not dry, a wooden stick is used to draw designs around the sides of the pots and the pots designed on their sides are baked in a kiln" she added. The local pots are distributed to Nyaunglebin, Shwegyin, Kyaukdaga, Pyu, Toungoo, Mon State and Yangon Region. —Myanmar Digital News■

A ferry boat sinks in Andaman Sea

A FERRY-BOAT from Warkyun village in Kawthoung Township that carried students who attended school in Pulawbaline Village sank in the sea while taking students to school yesterday morning.

Sixteen students have been rescued from the boat by fishermen from a nearby village.

The ferry boat sank due to the crashing of waves into the ferry boat from a wake that a much larger boat created when it crossed the ferry's path.

Children who live in villages near the sea went to school by ferry boat because some of the villages do not have post-primary schools. Relevant organizations should provide life-jackets, umbrellas and raincoats to those who have a difficult time commuting to school by ferry boat in addition a new school should be opened in Warkyun village that's affiliated according to the voices of the local residents.—Myanmar Digital News ■

Myanmar Gold Entrepreneurs Association to apply for licence to import pure gold blocks

THE Myanmar Gold Entrepreneurs Association will seek an import licence from the Commerce Ministry to buy pure gold blocks from China and Thailand, U Myo Myint told City News.

The Commerce Ministry announced on 22 January that gold and jewellery products could be exported, as well as imported into the country.

Gold entrepreneurs have welcomed the announcement, as earlier, gold was being imported illegally into the country from China.

The closure of manageable gold mines results in a decrease in gold production. However, it is a temporary ban.

“The association will apply for an export licence when there is an international expo or foreign buyers. We will apply for the import licence soon,” U Htone, gold smith and jewellery shop owner, as well as chairman of Myanmar Gold Entrepreneurs Association, told City News.

The price of domestic gold is hovering on the higher side, although it has slipped a bit. The market is seeing some gold trade now.

The export and import of gold and jewellery products can be carried out through sea routes, border trade gates and air routes. International buyers can make payments through letters of credit or the telegraphic transfer system, which is regulated by the Central Bank of Myanmar. Seeking import/export licences and registrations, as well as evaluating the price, value, quality and volume of the products, are obligatory for importers and exporters.

Registration requires a certificate from the Myanmar Gems Enterprise and the Department of Mines or a business permit from the Yangon City Development Committee.

A committee to observe and control the market, including officials from the Planning and Finance Ministry, Commerce Ministry, Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation Ministry, Education Ministry research centres, as well as representatives from the Myanmar Central Gold Committee, will appraise the quality, value, price and volume of gold and jewellery products and give approval over their import and export.

If unscrupulous activities are found, the scamsters will be given a warning first. If they commit illegal acts a second time, their import/export licences will be revoked, and action will be taken against the offenders under existing laws.—GNLM

UNION Day is always celebrated on 12 February, and this year, Union Day falls on a Monday, giving most people a rare three-day weekend.

For those who usually have Saturdays and Sundays off, some may use this opportunity to go on a short vacation or a pilgrimage to a nearby pagoda, while others may spend more time with family and friends. No doubt Yangon's public spaces and pagodas will be filled with people and their families relaxing.

We've asked a cross-section of people how they will be spending their Union Day holiday.

U Maw Naing Tun (In-charge of Yangon's Disaster Management Department)

A lot of civil servants spend their off days with their families. I will be spending the three-day holiday with my family visiting pagodas. We're going to People's Park on Union Day to join in on the celebrations there, and on the way home we may go to a bookstore.

Daw Yi Yi Mon (Mayangone Township IPRD)

I plan to stay at home with my family the first two days. On Union Day I'll be helping out with distributing pamphlets with my colleagues. In March however, I plan to go on a pilgrimage with my family to local pagodas.

Sayar U Kyaw Min (Ministry of Education Staff, retired)

I just moved to Yangon from a rural area, so I'm out of touch with my neighbourhood, but I plan to stay at home and spend time with my family. We'll discuss family matters and I can give them guidance. During the long holidays like Thingyan I usually go back to my hometown and make donations. The public holidays are the only time I can sit down with my working children and talk with them.

Ma Zinmar (Salesperson, Ever Seiko Co. Ltd)

I'm going to go to a beach with my friends. We haven't seen each other in a while, so it's exciting.

Daw Swe Zin Thein Tan (Sunshine Store House of Liquor)

I'm going with my family to Taunggyi, Inlay and Kalaw this weekend. Our children are not old enough for school yet, so we frequently go on vacations. Vacationing just releases all my stress and I enjoy visiting places I've never been to.

Ko Than Tin (office staff, Creative Myanmar Service Co. Ltd)

My wife and I are thinking of going to Ngwe Saung or Chaung Tha on our honeymoon this weekend. We'll visit some pagodas and eat food cooked by local villagers there. We'll play in the water and watch the beautiful sunset.

Ko Zaw Pyae Hmu (Office Staff, Nwe Ta Pin Trading Co. Ltd)

I'm swamped with work this month, but I have plans to go to Chaung Thar with my friends

Daw Ei Phyu Phyu Kyaw (Manager at Golden Milestones Travels & Tours)

during Thingyan.

Daw Thida Win (Teacher, Nay Chi Private High School, Magway)

I'll be on a work visit to Yangon this weekend, and I'll probably be visiting its famous pagodas. However, my students have their matriculation exam coming up, so I'm quite occupied. But I do have plans to take a vacation, maybe abroad, in the summer.

Let's work together for perpetuation of our Union

MYANMAR is striving for the “emergence of a Democratic Federal Republic based on democracy and federalism”. Whether or not we will achieve this goal depends on all of us. It is a responsibility that falls on all of our shoulders. The energy, faith and effort that we put into achieving peace can be a beacon of light for our country, our Union, and all of our peoples. Whether this light will fade or brighten in the months and years ahead will determine Myanmar’s place in this world.

Around the world, governments rule their countries with different ruling systems. As a result of their respective histories, the political systems of countries are different. Some governments are led by a president, whilst some are led by a prime minister. Some are constitutional monarchies.

Countries with names that include the words Union, United, and Federal are the democratic unions. The United States of America is the largest federal union in the world, with 50 states and one administrative city.

The United Kingdom is composed of England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. The reason why a union is formed is to become a strong entity capable of providing strength to all indigenous people in the union and to provide equitable development to all.

In Myanmar, the essence of our Union Peace Conference- 21st Century Panglong is the emergence of the united democratic federal republic.

Also, the solution to end the long-lasting armed conflicts and to get national reconciliation is building a democratic federal republic.

Union spirit is the source for building a democratic federal republic. Union spirit means a strong determination of all the national people to live in unity, and to negotiate in building a union.

Myanmar is a union composed of national races, having different cultures, traditions and religions. The national races living in respective geographical areas have been living together, practising their traditions and cooperating effectively.

It is very important for all the nationalities to equally participate in promoting national unity and to keep the Union in perpetuity. Within the Federal System, it is essential to establish legislative power that all ethnic groups have been craving for. Moreover, to ensure national reconciliation, it is necessary not only to establish clear confidence between the Union government and armed ethnic groups, but also to create mutual trust among ethnic groups. When we have gained national unity and national reconciliation, we will surely be able to build a peaceful and prosperous Democratic Federal Republic.

Media Freedom & pragmatic views

By Myint Kyaw (Zalun)

THE author of this article turns around and looks back into the conservative and conventional media practices of the world community that have existed on this planet for many centuries. The people of the world, the nations and the governments have been handling the well-designed tools such as the media control, the media policy and the media application in one way or another for the nation’s functional system, the national interest, the sovereignty, and the policy strategy.

All the talks with wide ranging topics about the media freedom are in the forefront and continuing while the information technology is on the rise. Since the issue is growing without intervention and that all the people could participate in this trend which is compounded with the affordable and cheap devices in this media context, the buzz word “media freedom” is now at the center stage that needs an agreeable and satisfying solution.

Whenever we talked about the media freedom, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights issued on 10 December 1948 comes into my mind.

In article (19), it is mentioned as follows.

“Article 19: Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers.”

Indeed, this specification is to be accepted, uphold and abide by. Along with the freedom, the concept of taking accountability and responsibility come together in finding solution and that many nations in the world today embrace this trend and work on it.

Democracy and Media

In the democratic nations, the citizens must have the ways and means to receive reliable information in time so that they could decide and choose whatever they deemed fit. All the activities and the works of the democratic government must be provided through the media to the public for evaluation and assessment without fail.

The people have the right to evaluate and assess over the accuracy, rightness and authenticity of information being provided by the government officials through the media. The main role and obligation of the media is not to put the burden and anxiety towards the public. The responsible officials for providing information from the government departments must never ever attach and mixed up themselves either as enemy or friend with the outside media personnel. Releasing correct information is the main responsibility for them.

Covering up or unveiling of information with ill intent over good news or bad news is a way of going back into the past, and that such way of handling information must be avoided by all means.

Either for worrisome circumstances or other undesirable perception, the release of news must never be an impediment or hindrance. The out flow of information must never be entrusted into particular hands of wrong persons to avoid unnecessary news censorship, which could lead to the needless thirst of news by the public.

All the matters must be handled by the skillful persons, professionals and responsible people so that the proper channel for solution of media problems could be opened up to solve at the earliest. It is equal and corresponding to the realization and recognition of democratic norm.

Media and relevant laws

The first step of media freedom is the freedom of expression and also in parallel with the interpretation of never hurting others or environment. In the notion of common desire, the media freedom is in line with the fundamental law and media law, and that this point is very much important. It is very imperative that the government, the organization or the person must issue true and correct information, not the adulterated or tainted news. It is the foundation of media freedom.

In Myanmar, the media freedom has been mentioned in the 2008 Constitution as follows.

354. Every citizen shall be at liberty in the exercise of the following rights, if not contrary to the laws, enacted for Union security, prevalence of law and order, community peace and tranquility or public order and morality:

- to express and publish freely their convictions and opinions;
- to assemble peacefully without arms and holding procession;
- to form associations and organizations;
- to develop their language, literature, culture they cherish, religion they profess, and customs without prejudice to the relations between one national race and another or among national races and to other faiths.

Direct and indirect laws in connection with the media are enacted as follows.

- (1) Printing and Publishing Law and Printing and Publishing By-law.
- (2) News Media Law and News media By-law.
- (3) Television and Video Law and Video Business By-law.
- (4) Motion Picture Law.
- (5) Broadcasting Law.
- (6) Burma Official Secret Act.
- (7) Myanmar Communication Law.
- (8) Electronic Communication Law.

In today’s age, every person is using news media to get information and they themselves have become news providers. Therefore, all the relevant laws have become important and necessary to know in details, and also to comply with.

The position of media persons in the world

Since most of the media persons are rushing upfront and concentrating just to get the information only, they knowingly or inadvertently breach the existing laws, regulations and ethics, and therefore, resulted with the rising arrests and detentions with punishment and sentences across the world.

According to the index released in December 2017, total of (262) media persons were arrested in one single year. More than half of the arrested persons were the media persons from Turkey, Egypt and the People’s Republic of China.

According to the press release of Reporters without Borders, it was learnt that out of 180 countries in the world there are 16 countries that have been considered and ranked as the most independent media and that all of them are from European countries. Free media with satisfactory status are counted in 33 countries and they are from Europe and Latin American countries. There are 59 countries all over the world where the media sectors are being handled with much caution. Seriously restricted media sectors are found in 59 countries in Asia and Africa. Heavily controlled and severely constraint media sectors are found in 21 countries in Middle East, Africa and Asia.

In the year 2017, a total of 81 journalists were killed due to various reasons across the globe. They were killed in Mexico, Afghanistan, Iraq, Syria, India, the Philippine, Pakistan, Nigeria, Somalia, and Honduras, according to International Federation of Journalists.

On 15 January 2018, author Elena has pointed out the names of 10 wealthiest media moguls in the world at www.trender.net it was learnt. Roy Firestone is an American sports commentator and journalist earns US$ 1.5 million; Ian Halperin is a Canadian investigative journalist, writer and documentary filmmaker gets US$ 2 million; Lauren Susan Green is the Chief Religion

Correspondent for the Fox News Channel makes US$ 2.1 million; Christopher “Chris” Rose is an American sportscaster for the MLB Network and NFL Network collects US$ 3 million; Lisa Marie Joyner is an American entertainment reporter and television host gathers US$ 4 million; Milo Yiannopoulos is a British political commentator; publisher, celebrity, blogger, journalist and author acquires US$ 4 million; Jackie Guerrido is a Puerto Rican television weather forecaster draws US$ 10 million; James Daniel May is an English television presenter and journalist earns US$ 15 million; earning of Cyber Expert Reporter Julian Assange has not been mentioned; and that CNN Reporter and Writer Anderson Cooper grabs US$ 100 million. Their names were mentioned as wealthiest media moguls in the world.

Media situation in the neighboring countries

It is necessary to have a look over the media situation of the neighboring countries.

In India, there are many media outlets that are catering television, radio, movie, newspaper, magazine and Internet based media. As there is no restriction on cross media ownership in India, the media companies and the media organizations have controlled and manipulated over the media market.

There are many regular newspapers, journals, radio stations, TV channels, but all the public media are controlled and manipulated by companies and organizations. The large and out-sized media companies in India always lashed out and refused the restriction imposed over their possession and ownership of their empire.

In the Peoples’ Republic of China, the Radio and TV sector is under the government control from 1949 to 1980, and then it become independent media when the country embarked into economic reform. Media related government organizations were being established and the media works are carried out under their supervision.

In September 2016, the Ministry of Information and Communication of Thailand has been renamed and reformed as the Ministry of Digital Economy and Society. It checked and watched is being established in the People’s Republic of Bangladesh, and it has been working and overseeing in connection with the laws, procedures, regulations and management tasks of the news media, movie production and information matters. The Ministry undertakes the responsibility with regards to the information of the government which is being released to the local and foreign media and also to the public. In Bangladesh, the online newspapers and the news portal programs are developing with great force.

With regards to the issue over the media freedom, it would be much decent and wise to talk over the international media with care, and that the news on the Thai Royal Family needs to seek approval before release to the public.

Under the paragraph (65) of the 2005 Criminal Procedure Law of Lao PDR, any person in violation or breach over the sovereignty of the nation, tarnishing the image of the country with intent, and the appalling writing of the nation is liable to be punished with fine or 15 years imprisonment. Total of (32) TV stations and (44) radio stations are all government owned enterprises, and (24) newspapers are the mouth piece of the government.

The Ministry of Information about and assess in the wider context of various situations happening across the world and in the region instead of making center of attention narrowly on our own country. Looking on the transformation over the flow of news information, the media sectors of the neighboring countries and their consequences should be taken into consideration in details to take hold and grasp the pragmatic views.

The author would like to wrap up that with these approaches in mind, it is to help the people through the media and build democracy with the strength of the people.

Local farmers face difficulties due to decrease in winter crop price

LOCAL farmers, who are growing winter crops in eight townships, are facing difficulties because of the decreasing price and supply of winter crops in the local market, according to a report in City News yesterday.

Winter crops are grown mainly in Bago, Waw, Daik U, Thanatpin, Kawa, Shwegyin, Kyaukdaga and Nyaunglebin in Bago District. Locals in these townships mainly cultivate summer paddy, groundnut, green beans and sesame as winter crops.

"A variety of pulses, which are winter crops, grow in our region. Due to unexpected rainfall this year, the crops were destroyed, and our farmers are facing losses. Earlier, 20 baskets of beans were produced per acre. However, this year, only five baskets of beans were produced per acre," said U Win, a local farmer from Hsin Village in Waw Township. Local farmers bought bean seeds for Ks55,000 per basket, but the price of beans is only between Ks32,000 and Ks35,000 per basket. Therefore, the local farmers are facing severe losses.

"The price of beans is not stable in the local market. Currently, we are trying to produce some 100 baskets of summer paddy per acre. Also, we are providing local farmers, who are planting summer crops, with knowledge of technical methods to use fertilisers and seeds," said U Lay Myint, Director of Bago Agricultural Department.

Recently, the Bogo district cultivated summer paddy on more than 80,000 acres of land, a variety of pulses on more than 1.5 million acres, sesame on 50,000 acres and sunflower on more than 150 acres. Most of the winter crops are cultivated in Kawa Township, Bago District. —GNLM ■

Bangkok air pollution warning, children asked to stay indoors

BANGKOK—Residents in Bangkok, one of the world's top tourist destinations, were warned on Thursday the city's air quality had hit dangerous levels just days after the country's pollution control agency appealed to residents to wear face masks.

Air pollution in the Thai capital has come under increasing scrutiny in recent weeks with residents complaining of smog and respiratory problems. Some schools were closed on Thursday or kept children indoors.

Air Quality Index (AQI) formulas usually include up to six main pollutants including PM2.5, PM10, carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen dioxide and ground level ozone. The Pollution Control Department reported PM2.5 dust in the Bangkok Metropolitan at midday on Thursday and at midday it was measured at 72-95 micrograms per m3, with the likelihood that it would increase. That compares with a World Health Organization (WHO) guideline of an annual average of no more than 10 micrograms. PM2.5 is a mixture of liquid droplets and solid particles that can include dust, dirt, soot and smoke.

"We've warned at-risk groups including sick people ... the elderly and children. We've warned that they must not conduct activities outdoors," Suwanna Tiansuwan, deputy director general of the Pollution Control Department, said.

Tiansuwan said the lack of wind in recent days had allowed pollution to accumulate in the air.

The department reported the Air Quality Index (AQI) in central Bangkok area had reached an unhealthy level of 135 AQI by early afternoon. The Air4Thai mobile phone application, which shows Pollution Control Department readings, does not factor in PM 2.5 or fine particulate matter that pose the greatest risk to human health.

Data from the American AirVisual smartphone application showed a 154 AQI reading for Bangkok.

Tarantino says Thurman movie car crash among 'biggest regrets'

LOS ANGELES — Director Quentin Tarantino said a car crash that seriously injured Uma Thurman on the set of "Kill Bill" was one of "the biggest regrets of his life," but denied that he forced the actress to carry it out.

Thurman, who appeared in three Tarantino movies, told the New York Times in a Saturday article that she felt Tarantino had tried to kill her in the 2003 crash, which crushed her knees and left her with a concussion.

Thurman also released video of the crash from the set of the martial arts movie, leading to harsh criticism of Tarantino on social and mainstream media.

Tarantino, responding in an interview with Hollywood website Deadline.com on Monday, said Thurman's car crashed because there was an unseen curve in the road.

"Watching her fight for the wheel. ... remembering me hammering about how it was safe and she could do it. Emphasizing that it was a straight road, a straight road. ... the fact that she believed me, and I literally watched this little S curve pop up. And it spins her like a top," Tarantino said.

"It was heartbreaking. Beyond one of the biggest regrets of my career, it is one of the biggest regrets of my life," he added.

Tarantino denied ignoring Thurman's anxiety about driving but acknowledged he had been mistaken about the safety of the road.

"I didn't force her into the car. She got into it because she trusted me," he said.

Tarantino said he and Thurman reconciled years ago and had talked since the New York Times story was published.

"Uma was in turmoil about the uprising against me this weekend. ... She never meant this to roll over onto me," he told Deadline.

The Oscar-winning director also said that incidents when he spat on Thurman and choked her with a chain were part of the filming process for "Kill Bill" and were carried out with her consent to make the scenes realistic.

Thurman said on her Instagram account on Monday that she was proud of Tarantino for making the crash video available to her after 15 years, saying he did so "with full knowledge it could cause him personal harm."

Thurman's account of the car crash overshadowed her accusations of sexual misconduct by Harvey Weinstein, who produced "Kill Bill" and "Pulp Fiction."

Weinstein's lawyer on Saturday acknowledged the producer "making an awkward pass" in 1994 but said Thurman's accusations of an attempted physical assault were false.—Reuters ■

Australian burger chain settles dispute with Crocodile Dundee actor

SYDNEY - Australian burger chain Grill'd has paid A$20,000 ($15,640) to actor Paul Hogan and a charity to settle a dispute over the use of one the "Crocodile Dundee" actor's most famous lines, his lawyer said on Thursday.

Hogan filed a lawsuit against the restaurant group in the Federal Court in December, accusing Grill'd of "misleading or deceptive conduct" by associating themselves with the Hogan brand without consent.

Grill'd had used a variation of the line "That's not a knife... that's a knife" from the 1986 movie "Crocodile Dundee" on the paper sleeves covering its knives.

Hogan both co-wrote and starred in "Crocodile Dundee", the tale of an Australian bushman at home in the outback who finds himself a fish out of water in New York.

The movie was a commercial and critical hit, garnering the Australian actor a Golden Globe Award for best actor and an Academy Award nomination for best screenplay.

Hogan's lawyer, Andrew Richardson, told Reuters that Grill'd had agreed to withdraw the controversial sleeves at all their outlets, pay Hogan A$10,000 for his legal costs, and donate another A$10,000 to the charity Cure Cancer Australia.

"We are pleased to have settled this issue with Paul Hogan and proud to donate the money to Cure Cancer, and such a worthwhile cause," Grill'd director Simon Crowe said in emailed statement. Hogan, a longtime supporter of Cure Cancer Australia, said the donation was chosen because cancer is one of the country's leading causes of death.—Reuters ■

Robin Williams' death linked to rise in copycat suicides

LOS ANGELES — Suicide rates in the United States spiked almost 10 percent following the death in 2014 of actor Robin Williams, and spiked even more among men and those who ended their lives, like Williams, by suffocation, according to a study published on Wednesday.

The study, published in the scientific journal PLOS One, found that in the five months from August to December 2014 some 18,690 deaths by suicide were recorded - an increase of 9.85 percent from the expected number of cases for the period.

Williams, the Oscar-winning star of "Good Morning, Vietnam" who was beloved for his humor, died in August 2014 at age 63 in a suicide that shocked fans worldwide. Authorities said he died of asphyxia after hanging himself at his home in northern California. An autopsy found that Williams was suffering from Lewy body dementia, which causes a progressive decline in mental ability.

Suicides following Williams' death rose by 12.9 per cent in men aged 30-44, and the study found a 32 per cent increase in the number of deaths from suffocation. Although the study could not prove a definitive link, it said there appeared to be a connection. Extensive media coverage of Williams' death "might have proved the necessary stimulus for high-risk segments of the US population (e.g. middle-aged men in despair) to move from suicidal ideation to attempt."

While the effects of widely reported celebrity suicides have previously been linked to increases in the wider population, the study said media coverage of Williams' suicide was particularly detailed and sensational and was amplified through social media.

The suicide in 1994 of Nirvana lead singer Kurt Cobain, for example, appeared to have a minimal impact on suicide rates in his Seattle home town, partly because of more restricted reporting, the study said.—Reuters ■

In a first, Gerber names boy with Down syndrome 'Spokesbaby'

DENVER — An 18-month-old boy with Down syndrome has been named by baby food maker Gerber as its "Spokesbaby" for 2018, the company said on Wednesday, an action hailed by advocates for people with the genetic condition.

Lucas Warren of Dalton, Georgia, won Gerber's annual photo contest over 140,000 entries with his "winning smile and joyful expression," Gerber Chief Executive Bill Partyka said in a statement.

"Every year, we choose the baby who best exemplifies Gerber's longstanding heritage of recognizing that every baby is a Gerber baby, and this year, Lucas is the perfect fit," Partyka said.

Gerber has held the photo contest since 2010, although parents have been sending photos of their infants to the company throughout its 90-year history, Partyka said. Gerber was bought in 2007 by Swiss food and beverage company Nestle. The Warren family will receive $50,000 from Gerber, and Lucas will take "a front seat" on the company's social media channels.—Reuters ■

Lagos art lovers get chance to bid for long-lost masterpiece found in London

LONDON/LAGOS — A portrait of a Nigerian princess that was lost for more than 40 years has been found in a London flat and will be sold at an auction screened live in Lagos, allowing Nigerian art lovers to make bids direct from the West African mega-city.

"Tutu", by Nigeria's best-known modern artist Ben Enwonwu, was painted in 1974 and appeared at an art show in Lagos the following year but its whereabouts after that were unknown until it re-surfaced in north London.

"It was his greatest masterpiece and people have been asking 'where is Tutu?' So to have this image turn up is extraordinary," said Giles Peppiatt, an expert in modern and contemporary African art at London auction house Bonhams, who identified the painting.

The portrait of Adetutu Ademiluyi, who was a grand-daughter of a revered traditional ruler from the Yoruba ethnic group, holds special significance in Nigeria as a symbol of national reconciliation after the 1967-1970 Biafran War.

Enwonwu belonged to the Igbo ethnic group, the largest in the southeastern region of Nigeria that had tried to secede under the name of Biafra.

The Yoruba people, whose homeland is in the southwest, were mostly on the opposing side in the war.

Enwonwu painted three versions of the portrait. The other two remain lost, although prints first made in the 1970s have been in circulation ever since and the images are familiar to many Nigerians. Enwonwu died in 1994.

Oliver Enwonwu, the artist's son, is president of the Society of Nigerian Artists. "This is a very significant discovery, given my father's contribution to Nigerian art and African art, more broadly," he told Reuters in Lagos.

Peppiatt said it had come as a shock to him to find the painting hanging in a north London home where he was called to examine it, because he had been on several wild goose chases in the past in search of the originals.

The owners did not wish to be identified, he said.

The work will be sold on 28 February in an auction at Bonhams in London that will be shown live at the Wheatbaker, a boutique hotel popular with artists in Ikoyi, a wealthy neighborhood of Lagos.

The price estimate is between 200,000 and 300,000 pounds ($277,600-$416,400). "We are quite hopeful about it because the market for Nigerian modern art is really strong at the moment. I've been in the market for 12 years and it's as strong as I've ever known it," Peppiatt told Reuters.—Reuters ■

China to establish ocean science research center

QINGDAO — An ocean research center will be built in east China's Shandong Province.

The Center for Ocean Mega-Science will be located in a science and education park in Qingdao, a coastal city in the province. Thirteen institutes of the Chinese Academy of Sciences (CAS) including the Institute of Oceanology, will help establish the new center.

Work on the center is to be completed in December 2019.

Teams and talent from the 13 institutes will work at the center to integrate oceanology and other sectors, said Wang Fan, director of the CAS Institute of Oceanology. The center will be home to a team coordinating the work of 10 research ships from subordinate institutes.

Wang, who is put in charge of the preparatory work for the new center, said they hoped that the projected facility would serve as an open base for innovation, capable of training talent in ocean science and offering support in expediting China's building into a strong nation in oceanology and boosting its capabilities of exploiting marine resources.—Xinhua ■

Allardyce can get me firing again at Everton —Walcott

LONDON — Everton striker Theo Walcott said manager Sam Allardyce was the key factor in his decision to sign for the Merseyside club from Arsenal last month and believes the former England boss can extract the best out of him.

Walcott, 28, hit the ground running at Everton and provided the assist for fellow forward Oumar Niasse's leveller in the 1-1 draw with West Bromwich Albion. He then scored both goals in the 2-1 win over Leicester City. "Sam was one of the main reasons why I came to the club. I wanted a manager like that who could get the best out of me," Walcott told the club's website. Walcott, who started six league games for Arsenal this season apart from playing five Europa League matches and four more in domestic cup competitions, said he could not turn down the opportunity to work with Allardyce.

"I had that short stint with Sam with England and to see it now every day, the way the intensity of training is and how demanding it is has been great. I like to go into training every day and try to be better than the day before." Everton are 10th in the league with 31 points and go into Saturday's home Premier League clash against Crystal Palace on the back of a 5-1 thumping by Arsenal but Walcott said Allardyce was working hard to turn things around.—Reuters ■

Triple hat trick from Win Theingi scores big win for Myawady

DEFENDING Champion Myawady made a tremendous win over Gandamar (20-0) with a triple hat trick from Win Theingi Tun in yesterday's KBZ Bank Women's League at Aung San Stadium, Yangon.

As Myawady was composed of all the perfect players mainly from the Myanmar National Women team and other well-experienced senior players, they could grasp nearly every opportunity to score goals and tire out Gandamar players.

Girls from the Gandamar team lost their concentration from the kick-off. The loss of concentration and courage from the youth team was the opening the senior team needed to dominate the playing field.

Even as early as the 3 minute mark, Win Theingi Tun scored the opener. Then three minutes later, Hla Yin Win made the second goal with great pass.

Yuper Khaing from Myawady scored the third in a minute after.

The flawless goals were seen with Mi Set scoring at 33 minute mark while Hla Yin Win at 37 minute and Yuper Khaing at 35 minute.

There were two more goals along with a garnering hat trick scored by the best player of the match Win Theingi Tun in the last minute of the first half at the 40 and 43 minute mark.

The second half play of brilliant team Myawady was seen dominating more over Gandamar.

The three more consecutive goals at 48, 49 and 50 minutes were scored by football hero Win Theingi Tun and another consecutive score by Yuper Khaing at 53, 56 and 58 minute mark.

An own goal was garnered at 52 minute by the defending champion team as the ball changed its direction by hitting Gandamar's players to enter directly into their net.

There are more goals scored by the team's hero Win Theingi and Yuper Khaing in the last minutes. Surprisingly Win Theingi scored the nine goals and Yuper Khaing scored seven goals in single match of yesterday.—KyawZin Lin ■
